DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

Dear Team,

As we reflect on the month of May, I am filled with immense pride and gratitude for the strides we have made together. It has been a month of accomplishments, learning, and impactful outreach – a true reflection of our shared commitment to excellence.

I'm pleased to share that we successfully achieved both accreditation and recertification, a significant milestone that underscores our dedication to maintaining the highest standards in our services. These achievements not only validate our systems and processes but also reinforce the trust our stakeholders place in us.

Mr. Arunendra Dvivedi

Another highlight of the month was our webinar on ISO 37001:2016 – Anti-Bribery Management System, which attracted an impressive 150 participants. The overwhelming response to the session reflects the growing relevance of ethical business practices and the value our organization brings to these vital conversations. We are proud to have created a platform for learning, awareness, and professional growth.

Each of these milestones is a testament to the hard work, passion, and perseverance of our team. I sincerely thank all of you for your continued contributions and unwavering spirit. As we move ahead, let's continue to embrace innovation, uphold integrity, and strive towards new goals with confidence and unity. The journey is long, but with such a dedicated team, our future is indeed bright.

Wishing you continued success and inspiration in all your endeavors!

Why ISO 22000:2018 Lead Auditor Training Is Essential for Food Safety Professionals

In today's global food industry, ensuring food safety isn't just good business—it's absolutely critical. With consumers becoming increasingly aware of food safety issues and regulations growing more stringent worldwide, organizations need qualified professionals who can effectively implement and audit food safety management systems. This is where ISO 22000 Lead Auditor training becomes invaluable.

What exactly is ISO 22000:2018?

ISO 22000 is an internationally recognized standard that sets out the requirements for a food safety management system. It maps out what organizations need to do to demonstrate their ability to control food safety hazards and ensure food is safe for consumption. The standard combines key elements like interactive communication, system management, prerequisite programs, and HACCP principles to ensure food safety throughout the supply chain.

How SIS Certifications Helps Local Food Businesses Meet Global Standards

In today's global food industry, consumers are more conscious than ever about the safety, quality, and sustainability of what they eat. Local food businesses that want to grow and compete internationally need to follow certain global best practices. That's where SIS Certifications comes in. By helping businesses get certified with internationally recognized ISO standards, SIS Certifications empowers local food producers, manufacturers, and retailers to meet global expectations.

These Certifications don't just look good on paper—they ensure better safety, higher quality, and stronger trust from customers and business partners worldwide. Let's take a closer look at how different ISO standards supported by SIS Certifications help local food businesses grow, improve, and go global.

ISO 22000:2018 – Food Safety Management System

Food safety is the foundation of any food business. ISO 22000:2018 provides a solid framework for managing food safety risks and ensuring that food remains safe across every stage of the supply chain—from sourcing to consumption.

The standard incorporates the principles of HACCP (Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points), which means identifying potential hazards and controlling them before they become problems. This is especially important for small and local businesses, where a single safety issue can have huge consequences.

SIS Certifications helps businesses implement ISO 22000 by providing expert guidance, training, and audits. With this Certifications, local food businesses not only ensure compliance with safety regulations but also gain credibility with consumers and global buyers.

ISO 37001:2016 CERTIFICATION

Building Integrity and Trust with ISO 37001:2016 Certification

ISO 37001:2016 Certification – Anti-Bribery Management System (ABMS)

Overview:

ISO 37001:2016 is an international standard developed by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) that specifies requirements and provides guidance for establishing, implementing, maintaining, reviewing, and improving an Anti-Bribery Management System (ABMS).

Purpose:

The standard aims to help organizations prevent, detect, and respond to bribery, and comply with anti-bribery laws and voluntary commitments applicable to their activities.

Applicability Across Industries

This standard can be adopted by organizations of any size or industry, including multinational corporations, government bodies, non-profits, and small businesses. By integrating ISO 37001:2016, companies demonstrate a clear commitment to ethical practices and compliance with global anti-bribery laws. The certification helps organizations manage bribery risks by introducing effective policies, monitoring systems, internal controls, and training processes.

Strategic and Ethical Benefits

Achieving ISO 37001:2016 certification enhances an organization's reputation and fosters trust among clients, investors, regulators, and employees. It acts as a preventative tool, minimizing legal, financial, and reputational risks associated with bribery and unethical conduct. Furthermore, it enables companies to strengthen corporate governance and maintain a culture of transparency and accountability.

Sustainable Business Growth Through Ethical Practices

Implementing ISO 37001 isn't just about compliance—it's about laying the foundation for sustainable business growth. Ethical conduct helps avoid costly legal issues, improves organizational efficiency, and fosters a healthy working environment. By rooting out bribery risks, businesses create space for transparent growth and long-term success.

A Commitment to Ethical Excellence

Adopting ISO 37001:2016 is a bold and necessary step for any organization serious about ethics, compliance, and sustainable success. It is more than just a certification—it's a declaration of integrity, responsibility, and resilience. As corruption risks evolve, ISO 37001 ensures your organization stays resilient, accountable, and trustworthy in every transaction.

A Step Toward Responsible Growth

Implementing this standard is not just about compliance—it's a strategic decision that reflects the organization's values and dedication to ethical conduct. ISO 37001:2016 helps build long-term resilience and positions the organization as a responsible and trustworthy player in the global marketplace.

Conclusion

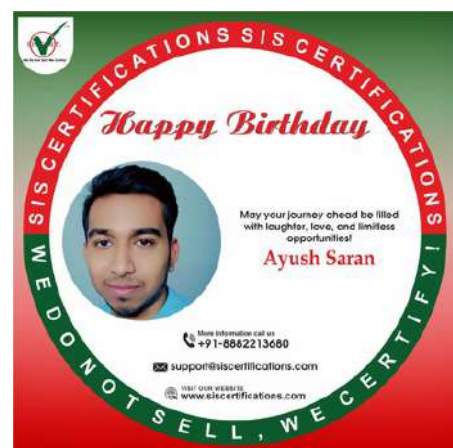

ISO 37001:2016 is not just a certification—it's a proactive step toward cultivating a transparent, responsible, and trustworthy business environment. By adopting ISO 37001, organizations send a strong message about their zero-tolerance approach to bribery and corruption.
